AVIATION GROUND HANDLING AND SAFE WORK MONTH

Aviation Ground Handling (AVGH) is pleased to announce that Workplace Safety Compliance Manager, Tony Morgan has been invited to present an address at the Safe Work Australia breakfast seminars in both Townsville and Rockhampton.

As part of Safe Work Month, Tony Morgan, who is based at Maroochydore Airport, will present a case study on Injury Prevention and Management (IPaM). Tony Morgan worked with an adviser from Workplace Health and Safety Queensland and together they reviewed and refined AVGH's safety management system. As a result AVGH has made significant improvements and their injury rate is now down below the industry average rate.

AVGH Chief Operating Officer Craig Shaw said AVGH's participation in the IPaM program had been an invaluable tool and the organisation has benefited greatly from the implementation of changes and recommendations – a safer workplace for employees and reduced costs to the business.

"We believe that AVGH will continue to improve their WH&S practices through our participation in this program", said Mr Shaw.

The breakfasts will be held in Townsville on 21 October at Rydges, Southbank and in Rockhampton on 22 October at Rockhampton Leagues Club.

Aviation Ground Handling is a leading aircraft ground handling company operating in Australia with local operations at Gold Coast, Townsville, Rockhampton, Mackay, Sunshine Coast, Miles, Brisbane and Roma airports.
